

Airport Services in Archuleta County

Fixed Base Operation at Stevens Field

Article Submitted by AvJet
FBO

Avjet's Pagosa Springs FBO (Fixed Base Operation) at Stevens Field offers pilot services and amenities in an extraordinary setting, only 30 minutes from Wolf Creek ski area and with nearby access to the best of the great outdoors, including fishing, hunting, hiking and biking. Stevens Field features a long, smooth runway, and the Avjet facility provides competitively priced fuel and other aircraft services as well as a comfortable lobby with TV, pilot's snooze room, wireless Internet access, a computer terminal, and the all-important cup of fresh coffee.

As a smaller facility that's not clogged with commercial flights, the Pagosa Springs airport is a convenient option for travelers to and from this part of Colorado, offering the personalized touch for which Avjet is renowned.

Getting Even Better

Stevens Field commissioned an Automated Weather Observing System (AWOS) last year and is working with the Colorado Department of Transportation and the Federal Aviation Administration on the development of an instrument approach for the airport. This will enable airplanes to land with lower cloud ceilings.

Summer 2007 will see the start of work on new blacktop for the A2 ramp north of the FBO, as well as a parallel taxiway, enabling more efficient use of the facility. Meanwhile, the county is negotiating a lease for hangar construction, which could add as many as 27 hangars next to the FBO, making it an even more convenient and cost-effective choice for pilots who wish to base their planes in Pagosa Springs.

See for Yourself

Avjet's Pagosa Springs FBO is proud to be located in such a stunning natural environment. If you think the Archuleta county area is pretty from the ground, you should see it from the air! Avjet would be delighted to connect you with a pilot who will help you realize this not-to-be-missed experience.
